It is an excellent idea. Most disabled people would much rather stay in their own homes with extra help

There needs to be an assistance scheme for older home owners with caring and carers needs, to be able to move from their, now too large and unsuitable properties with stairs and too many bedrooms upstairs, into affordable, single level, one and two bedroomed housing home ownership, thus keeping them able to, still own their own home and also and importantly, releasing the, now unsuitable homes that they are living in, to the open market so that the much-needed larger house with one or two elderly people in, are available to be released, to the younger families that are desperate to find suitable housing, to live in and remain within Torbay. My wife and I, are a fine example of this situation, I am retired, my wife is unable to work due to her mental health condition and I am her carer, we live in a large four double bedroom town house over three floors, with two bathrooms, four toilets and large living room and kitchen diner. We use a quarter of the property and have been looking for over two years to move within the Bay and cannot find anything suitable for our requirements, that is affordable and that is in good condition and in the meantime, we are house blocking and preventing a family from living in our now, oversized for us, house.
